EDITO

The art scenes of Beirut, Lebanon, and all the countries that make up the ME.NA.SA. - Middle East – North Africa – South Asia - are characterized by an incredible, joyful dynamism. The desire to partake in this dynamism while promoting it and sharing it with the world is what drives everyone taking part in this 7th edition of BEIRUT ART FAIR.

More than ever, it's important for us to highlight the remarkable optimism that distinguishes Lebanon on the contemporary art scene: an optimism that's given rise to a host of openings, re-openings and inaugurations - of museums, foundations, and exhibition spaces - across the Lebanese capital, alongside a number of ambitious projects scheduled for the coming years.

While bearing in mind that its traditional multiculturalism and the global Lebanese diaspora do make Lebanon special, we need to go beyond the usual clichés to help all fairgoers - artists, art collectors, art merchants and art lovers - understand the specificity of this particular historical moment, in which we're seeing an art scene in full expansion driven as much by contradiction and confrontation as by affirmation and adherence.

BEIRUT ART FAIR's business has tripled since 2010. In 2016 the fair will expand to brand new exhibition spaces. With the exhibition LEBANON MODERN! - generously supported by Bankmed - BEIRUT ART FAIR will promote a fundamentally new vision based on seminal artistic research of a different modernity: one that is parallel, but often overlooked and underestimated, which highlights the role of Lebanese women artists between 1945 and 1975. The fair will also host a new platform - REVEALING by SGBL - entirely dedicated to the discovery of the most promising young talents from the ME.NA.SA. region.

Photography has always occupied an important place at BEIRUT ART FAIR, most notably through the creation of a prize, the BYBLOS BANK AWARD, whose mission is to support young Lebanese photographers. This year marks the 5th edition of the prize at the fair.

In just a few years, BEIRUT ART FAIR has become an international artistic event that attracts an ever greater number of visitors to Lebanon: professionals and art lovers from the region and from around the world. We've decided to highlight this evolution by putting together a selection committee that reflects the support BEIRUT ART FAIR enjoys from the most important art collectors in the region, whom we've enlisted on the basis of their rich expertise, their intellectual curiosity, and the quality of their views on the regional art scene.

At the same time, BEIRUT ART FAIR remains a friendly and welcoming event that puts exchange and proximity at the heart of its activity. This year, BEIRUT ART FAIR will offer an exceptional VIP program that opens the doors of the homes and collections of the city's most passionate collectors, who will share their secrets in convivial settings. Different Lebanese museums and foundations will grant exceptional visits to fairgoers on the hunt for new discoveries. What's more, for the first time BEIRUT ART FAIR will offer its most passionate visitors the opportunity to literally embark upon the discovery of contemporary Lebanese culture.

I especially want to thank all our partners and sponsors - most notably the cultural institutions, which include the Culture and Tourism Ministries of Lebanon, the Institut Français of Lebanon, and the Lebanon Tourist Office in Paris, Istituto Italiano di Cultura de Beirut. I would also like to thank Bankmed, our main partner since the creation of the fair in 2010, our new partner the Société Générale de Banque au Liban, Byblos Bank, and the Hotel Le Gray, whose support has made possible this 7th edition of BEIRUT ART FAIR, along with the unique exploration of contemporary creation in the region that it represents.

STATE OF AFFAIRS

Beginning in the 1960s, several pioneering galleries and art centers - for example the Galerie One and Dar El Fan - started promoting the work of Lebanese artists. Subsequently, many galleries opened their doors - even during the most difficult moments of Lebanon's history. Beirut now has over thirty galleries dedicated to modern and contemporary art, as well as to contemporary design.

Consequently, the gallery network in Lebanon is structured and well-developed. Some Lebanese artists have recently benefited from major retrospectives in leading international institutions: Saloua Raouda Choucair at Tate Modern, Shafic Abboud at the Institut du Monde Arabe, Walid Raad at MoMA, Etel Adnan this summer at London's Serpentine Gallery and soon at the Institut du Monde Arabe in Paris.

Today, the international market for Lebanese art is remarkably dynamic. A prime example is the recent auction held at Bonhams in London last April. For the first time an ensemble of works covering the evolution of Lebanese painting from the late-19th century to the contemporary period was sold. These included pioneers of Lebanese modernism like Daoud Corm, Khalil Saleeby, Kahlil Gibran and Cesar Gemayel - artists who until now hardly ever appeared on the auction market. The results were excellent (see annex) and indicate the relevance and value of this previously overlooked and underestimated current of modernism. The sale also confirmed the art market success of more contemporary artists, such as Huguette Caland, Zena El Khalil, Ayman Baalbaki, and Tagreed Darghouth.

The Lebanese diaspora, numbering approximately 14 million people spread across all continents, plays a key role in the dynamism of Lebanon's art scene. Through the many associations members of the diaspora have established in their host countries, along with many other initiatives, they promote the discovery and dissemination of Lebanese artistic creation by new audiences. On another level, exchanges between resident or immigrant Lebanese artists during their regular visits to Lebanon support the importation of new techniques and new approaches, creating novel artistic dialogues at the cutting edge of creativity and technology. This was beautifully reflected in a superb exhibition that took place at the Beirut Exhibition Center in 2015, entitled «HeartLand» or «Territoire d'Affect». The exhibition brought together the biggest names in the Lebanese expatriate art community, who offered works that explored themes of exile and atavistic attachment to one's homeland.

BEIRUT ART FAIR 2016

BEIRUT ART FAIR was created in 2010 and is directed by Laure d’Hauteville, an exhibition curator and former journalist.

BEIRUT ART FAIR’s Artistic Director is Pascal Odille, an expert in modern and contemporary art (member of C.N.E.S.). Marine Bougaran directs the fair’s «Projects» space.

In 2015, BEIRUT ART FAIR welcomed 21,000 visitors. 52 galleries from 19 countries presented more than 1,500 works by 300 artists. The total revenues of the fair amounted to $3.2 million - twice those of the 2011 edition.

Key figures showing the evolution of BEIRUT ART FAIR:

	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015
Number of exhibiting galleries	30	25	43	46	47	51
Number of exhibiting artists	30	80	180	200	250	300
Number of works present	30	600	1,100	1,200	1,300	1,500
Total sales volume	800,000 US$	1,600 000 US$	2,150 000 US$	2,800 000 US$	3,000 000 US$	3,200 000 US$
Total number of visitors	3,500	9,000	11,000	18,000	20,000	21,000

The goal of the 7th edition of the BEIRUT ART FAIR is to strengthen its position as the leading showcase for the vibrant art scene of the ME.NA.SA. by promoting the internationalization of artistic creation from the region. In 2016, this mission will translate into the following specific projects:

- A new visual identity, including a new logo and a new typeface designed by the Lebanese Agency IMPACT BDDO. This new identity embodies the fair’s contemporary, international, and high-end dimensions.

Two unprecedented exhibitions at the fair site:

- Lebanon Modern! Women Artists in Lebanon, 1945 -1970, sponsored by Bankmed
- REVEALING by SGBL, dedicated to the discovery of the ME.NA.SA. region’s most promising young artists, organized with the support of Société Générale de Banque au Liban

LEBANON MODERN! WOMEN ARTISTS IN LEBANON, 1945 TO 1975

By Pascal Odille
Artistic Director of BEIRUT ART FAIR

For the first time, BEIRUT ART FAIR will honor Lebanese women artists from the modernist period. Through a selection of works originating from both private collections and from the Lebanese Ministry of Culture, the exhibition will showcase the strength and creative energy of women artists who are often unknown to the general public. It will offer an opportunity to discover the works of these women who injected the Lebanese art scene with a tremendous dynamism, all while looking outward to new horizons, often creating significant links between their country and the rest of the world.

From the late-19th century, Middle-Eastern artists - and particularly artists from Lebanon, Syria, and Egypt - undertook what could be called the «Grand Tour», embarking on the discovery of France, Italy, Spain and the United Kingdom. Over the course of this journey, passing from workshop to workshop, they would come to know and to perfect what one might call «easel painting». This period was also marked by the creation of local galleries in Lebanon, which grew increasingly numerous and knowledgeable. Concurrent with this increase were major exhibitions and the publication of art books that provided access to the entirety of the world's 'virtual' art museum. Finally, internationally renowned painters and sculptors passed through Lebanon and made the country - already the economic hub of the Middle East - a primary center of artistic creation.

After a period of fascination with Western creation - a fascination that imposed Western criteria, tastes, and market forces - several Lebanese artists managed to assert their own inspiration, particularly by turning their attention to subjects more germane to Lebanese society.

Meanwhile, the beginning of the 20th century in Europe coincided with the drive to alter patriarchal conceptions of society, a drive manifested in the struggle for women's independence and in the first suffragette movements. Excluded from fine arts workshops until 1900, women artists suddenly found themselves at the vanguard of modernity. They had shaken the patriarchal yoke, and in so doing achieved a freedom of body, desire, mind, and imagination. In turn, they became implicated in the 'search' for modernity, and began to write, paint, sculpt and compose music in large numbers. In spite of this, according to Marie-Jo Bonnet*, «the assessment that the major museums of modern and contemporary art have made of the contribution of women artists in the 20th century is sadly indicative of a global ignorance of their importance. At Paris' Centre Georges Pompidou, only 5% of exhibited works were created by women.» Is this absence a reflection of the historical reality, or is it rather a partisan reading of the history of the 20th century art that eliminates, ipso facto, female singularity?»

The position of the female artist in Lebanon, particularly in the modern period, is in no way different. The standard version of art history has been written by men and for men. And yet a large number of women marked and influenced the landscape of artistic creation in Lebanon from the end of the Second World War to the 1970s. In their own way, they dismantled existing codes and won for their successors the ability to become a part of contemporary history.

EXHIBITION

LEBANON MODERN! WOMEN ARTISTS IN LEBANON, 1945 TO 1975

The exhibition will include a selection of works by the following artists (in chronological order by year of birth):

- Bibi Zogbé (1890-1973)
- Marie Hadad (1895-1973)
- Blanche Lohéac Ammoun (1912-2011)
- Saloua Raouda Choucair (1916)
- Helen Khal (1923-2009)
- Etel Adnan (1925)
- Cici Sursock (1926-2015)
- Yvette Achkar (1928)
- Huguette Caland (1931)
- Laure Ghorayeb (1931)

- Nadia Saikali (1936)
- Seta Manoukian (1945)

These grandes dames of Lebanese modernist creation illustrate a remark made by May Ziadé in 1914: «The citizenship of tomorrow will no longer be the exclusive province of men, but of humans, where woman will take her rightful place alongside man».

Works by these women have found their way into private collections and international institutions like the Centre Pompidou in Paris and the Tate in London. With Lebanon Modern! we hope to contribute to this move towards a broader public recognition of creations by women.

«Our life is such that at every moment we leave a piece of ourselves in the brambles of our path... Any attempt to stop us would be a vain one, for we are like a torrent, in which the wave that follows propels the wave that precedes. Its waters flow over rough rocks, fall in quivering cascades; it yearns to free itself from these inhospitable lower depths, but is forced to remain there for as long as destiny has seen fit.»

AN EXPANDING MARKET, DRIVEN BY NEW INITIATIVES

Since its creation in 2010, BEIRUT ART FAIR has served to both spotlight and reinforce a dynamic art market that today finds itself in full expansion, both in Lebanon and in the broader ME.NA.SA. region.

Concretely, this dynamism is supported by a series of initiatives, both institutional and private, that contribute directly to an increased valuation of local and regional artists, both modern and contemporary, as evidenced by the recent sale at Bonhams in London in April 2016.

The most significant institutional initiatives from 2015 and 2016 include:

- The 2015 reopening of Beirut's Sursock Museum, which exhibits the major names of Lebanese modern and contemporary painting, including Shafic Abboud, Lotti Adaimi, Anton Asfar, Simone Baltaxé-Martayan, Juman Beyazit, Saloua R. Choucair, Georges Cyr, Franck Duminiel, Paul Giragosian, Georges Guv, John Haddian, Hussein Madi, Halim Jurdak, Elie Kanaan, Viola Kassab, Michel el Mir, Levon Moumjian, Mounir Najm, Omar Onsi, Aref Rayes, Nadia Saikali Mohamed Sakr, Stelio Scamanga Juliana Seraphim, H. Torrossian, Sophie Yeramian, and Khalil Zgaib.
- The October 2015 inauguration of the Aishti Foundation, which functions both as an exhibition space and a shopping center. Located in the Jal el Dib district in northern Beirut, this space of over 100,000 square meters was created at the initiative of Tony Salamé and designed by architect David Adjaye as part of a $100 million project. The exhibition spaces occupy an area of over 12,000 square meters and house the personal collection of Tony and Elham Salamé.
- The Dar el Nimer Foundation, dedicated to the art and culture of Palestine and open since May 2016 in the Clemenceau neighborhood in the heart of Beirut. Rami El Nimer, a major Palestinian collector of Islamic art, bought the Villa Salem to house the Foundation, which is headed by Rasha Salah. Salah presents his collection and highlights cultural productions in all genres, with the goal of promoting an appreciation of the modern and contemporary history of Palestine and the Arab world.
- The Palestine Museum, open since May 2016 in the Birzeit neighborhood of the West Bank. The result of a $24 million investment, the museum celebrates Palestinian culture in all its forms, historical, cultural, and artistic.
- Musée National Virtuel d'Art Moderne (Virtual National Museum of Modern Art). An initiative of the Lebanese Ministry of Culture, the museum provides information on the current state of the arts in Lebanon and on its development over the past decades. This virtual museum presents the various artistic currents to which Lebanese artists have belonged, from the most classical currents of painting and sculpture to the most abstract and contemporary trends. <http://artmodernemv.gov.lb/>
- La Maison Jaune «Beit Beirut», set to open in September 2016. This symbolic building - situated on the line which separated the two opposing armies during the civil war - will become a cultural center dedicated to the history of the city of Beirut since the 19th century. Beit Beirut will allow visitors to discover Beirut across cultural and artistic exhibitions and in a museum of the city's history.

Retrospectives

Important retrospectives have been devoted to showcasing the talents of Lebanon's most accomplished artists, including Shafic Abboud at the Institut du Monde Arabe (IMA) in 2011, Saloua Raouda Choucair at Tate Modern in 2013, Walid Raad at MoMA in 2015/16, Mona Hatoum at the Pompidou Centre in 2015 and at Tate Modern in 2016, and Etel Adnan at the Serpentine Gallery in London and soon at the IMA in Paris.

New Galleries

The dynamism of the Lebanese art scene is also evidenced by the opening of new spaces devoted to modern and contemporary art. These include the new gallery Marfa' Project and the new Saleh Barakat Gallery, located in Clemenceau, Beirut.

Bonhams

Finally, the auction at Bonhams in London on 27 April 2016 helped develop a whole section of the history of art in the Middle East, and particularly in Lebanon. Previously Lebanese pioneers of modernism like Daoud Corm, Khalil Saleeby, Khalil Gibran, and Cesar Gemayel were conspicuously absent from the art market. The Portrait of Mrs. A. Morten (1914) by Khalil Gibran sold for 230,000 €. Representatives of the younger generation, born in the 1970s and marked by war, also achieved excellent prices, including 113,628 € for Ayman Baalbaki's Beirut City Centre and 518,000 € for the large canvas (2 x 3 m) Scrutateur de l'arrière passion (1985) by Rachid Koraïchi, an Algerian artist born in 1947.

5 YEARS OF THE BYBLOS BANK AWARD

The goal of the BYBLOS BANK AWARD is to support a booming art form while offering young Lebanese photographers privileged access to the main players in the market - experts, galleries, collectors, media.

Byblos Bank and BEIRUT ART FAIR have invited photographer Halida Boughriet to work with five young photographers selected from the finalists of previous editions of the fair. Together they will produce a joint work to be presented to the public in a dedicated space at BEIRUT ART FAIR 2016.

A graduate of the École Nationale Supérieure des Beaux-Arts in Paris, French-Algerian artist Halida Boughriet explores photography and a wide range of other media in her work. She also gives a central place to performance. Her works can be seen in the collections of the Centre Pompidou in Paris and of the MAC/VAL (Vitry -sur-Seine). SELECTIONS VIP Lounge

Selections, an art, design, fashion and lifestyle magazine, is offering fairgoers a brand new space for meeting, exchanging, and reflecting.

The VIP lounge is a place where fairgoers, collectors, journalists, artists and gallerists can gather to interact and to dialogue.

This year, Selections magazine has been given free-reign to design a lounge represents the fair's beating heart. It provides a meeting place and a comfort zone for fairgoers, while mirroring the principal themes of the 2016 edition of BEIRUT ART FAIR.

Rima Nasser and Anastasia Nysten from Selections have custom-designed the lounge to grab attention while promoting a spirit of conviviality. It's a salon in the truest sense - a cocoon, even - elegantly furnished with designer chairs by Dedon. The cocktail bar, strategically located at the front of the lounge, is the work of Diageo.

Next to the bar visitors will find the buffet, with offerings from Maroun Chedid - a talented chef with 25 years of experience - representing the summit of Lebanese cuisine. It promises to be an authentic and unforgettable culinary experience.

Finally, a video installation by international DJ and 3D artist Vika Kova, created as an homage to Lebanese women, offers yet another reason to visit the VIP lounge.

PARTNERS

Over the course of five years, the Byblos Bank Award for photography has evolved into one of the most prestigious photography awards in Lebanon. This milestone was reached thanks to five successful years of partnership with BEIRUT ART FAIR, and five years of dedication from emerging Lebanese photographers, and five years of trust from experts in the field of artistic photography, and five years of fruitful collaboration with the media.

The fifth edition of the Byblos Bank Award for photography also marks a big step forward in the Bank's continuous efforts to support photography as an art form in Lebanon. Many participants were able to develop their talent and build their careers thus laying the foundations to a diverse Lebanese photography market.

Byblos Bank established its Photography Program in 2012, aiming to create the right conditions for emerging Lebanese photographers to support themselves through their art. This is achieved primarily by placing these gifted artists at the heart of the market, bringing them closer to collectors, gallerists, established professional photographers, and the media.

Organized in cooperation with BEIRUT ART FAIR, the annual Byblos Bank Award for Photography is the high point of this endeavor.

Spotlight

A survey of the art market in the ME.NA. region in 2016

By Pascal Odille
Artistic Director of BEIRUT ART FAIR

In the art market, some signs are unmistakable. The number of auctions dedicated to modern and contemporary creation in the Middle East is one such sign. It has increased in recent years, as has the quality of the works produced.

In 2016, a large number of historical pieces were presented for sale. Upon studying the results, one can't help but note the growing interest of collectors in the artists who represent the modern period.

While auctions in recent years at Christie's Dubai have accustomed us to record sales, what took place at Bonhams in London this past April enhanced the general appreciation and understanding of a whole swathe of the history of art from the Middle East, and particularly that of Lebanon. Daoud Corm, Khalil Saleeby, Khalil Gibran, Cesar Gemayel - pioneers of Lebanese modernism present in this auction - had previously been conspicuously absent from the art market.

The history of the modern Middle East often parallels that of the emigration of artists, whether that emigration be voluntary or forced. For these artists, emigration is often marked by nostalgia and an affection for one's homeland, as shown, for example, in the correspondence between Khalil Gibran and Amin al Rihani: «I wanted to say goodbye to you and hold you in my arms before the boat takes you toward the sunrise. I even wanted to go with you to this land whose rocks and rivers I love, whose churchmen and rulers I loathe. But what my dreams sketch is erased upon waking, and plain hope is masked by inability. Tomorrow you're going to the most beautiful, the most sacred country in the world, and I remain a distant exile: what happiness for you, and how unlucky I am. But if you think about me before Mount Sannin, near Byblos and the Frayké Valley, you will ease the pain of exile and lighten for me the suffering of emigration and distance.»

At the same time, exile is also an opportunity for fruitful meetings, discussions, and confrontations of ideas and styles. Thus the history of modern art is a common story that must be read across the board, taking into account all the connections and friendships that came to exist between the artists who define the period.

Thus Khalil Gibran: after a stay in Paris in 1908, during which he joined the l'École des Beaux-Arts and met Auguste Rodin, he went to the United States, where he became friends with New York art dealer Alexander Morten. In 1914, he painted a portrait of Morten's wife; this beautiful «Portrait of Mrs. Alexander Morten» was bought for $260,000 at the Bonhams sale. Another example of fruitful exchanges between artists is the meeting of Khalil Saleeby with Renoir and Singer Sargent. Painted in 1916, the Portrait of Carrie Aude (the artist's wife), sold for $26,000, attesting to the profound influence that existed between these artists. Another work marked by the influence of Renoir, the Nude at rest (ca. 1940) by Cesar Gemayel, a pupil of Saleeby, sold for $70,000.

The Portrait of a Lady by Saliba Douaihy, which sold for $35,000, reflects the artist's training in the Decorative Arts in Paris in the 1930s. And one senses the influence of American Abstract Expressionism in Douaihy's Untitled, painted in 1972 following his meeting in New York with Hans Hofmann and Ad Reinhardt, two pillars of the movement. The painting sold for $130,000.

During his stay in Paris, Bibi Zogbé met Tamara Lempicka - the muse of Art Deco - and was later inspired by the Bulgarian painter Dimitrov Bogdan whom he met in Argentina. Works by Zogbé are still relatively rare on the market. These have included RETAMAS (1939), which went for $26,000 at Sotheby's in London in April 2016.
